1. First Installation:

- a. Location: One kilometer southeast of the village of Piliscsaba (25 kilometers northwest of Budapest), southwest of Route 1.
- b. Description: The installation was protected with walls and barbed wire. The dimensions were 300 by 400 meters. There were about ten small buildings with one or two stories. Since the metal gate at the entrance was closed, no underground installations could be observed. There were garages for at least twenty vehicles. The installations could accommodate about 1000 to 1200 men.
- c. Occupation: There were Soviet infantry and tank troops.
- d. Equipment: None was observed; but BTR-40's and BTR-152's had been seen to enter the installation on a number of previous occasions.
- e. Probable Strength of Occupation: An infantry unit, possibly of battalion strength, and an armored unit.

2. Second Installation:

- a. Location: About 1200 meters southeast of Piliscsaba and northeast of Route 1, near the first installation.
- b. Description: The installation was enclosed with barbed wire and a four-meter-high wall which was 150 meters long and covered the side facing Route 1, in front of the garages, and evidently was meant to conceal them. The surface measured 400 by 400 meters. There were about twelve small black-painted one- or two-story buildings, dispersed in a wooded area. There was a large garage, about 100 meters in length, completely hidden behind the wall. Big antennas had been installed on one building. The installation included large educational and sports facilities, and could accommodate about 1000 men.
